Water-colour Portrait Painting Demo with Trish Riddoch

Trish Riddoch is our wonderful coordinator of the Monday Portrait Painting Sketch group. Although Trish says oils are her favourite medium, she also produces fine portraits in charcoal and water-colour. We are fortunate she has agreed to use water-colour as the medium for the third in the Adelaide Art Society series of portrait painting demos.

Trish began her art education initially in the area of Advertising Art at the Gordon Institute of TAFE in Geelong and then completed a further two years in Fine Arts. Following her study she taught Art at Glennie College in Toowoomba and subsequently in a state high school on moving to Melbourne. With a family of four children, art took a back seat for a while and Trish satisfied her art passion through sketching when she found the time. It was only when she retired, Trish was able to devote my time to art and resume her love for portraiture.

Trish's artistic influences include Degas, Toulouse-Lautrec and also the Scottish colourists.

Our Portrait Painting and Life Drawing Sketch groups are active and lively so I am sure this demo will be equally anticipated by all.
